

Transition to Adult Living

Becoming an adult can be trying for anyone, but children aging out of juvenile justice and foster care face unique challenges. Many do not succeed because they do not have typical support systems as they prepare for adult life. These programs provide young people assistance in transitioning back into their communities.

Transition to Adult Living Program was implemented November 17, 2003. A key element in the plan is Maximizing Human Potential.

The program also helps young adults find housing, employment, on-the-job training, and crisis support, along with a variety of other services.
